

W

up! side world } Translate it guess

but yeah. claire. i was so glad she came in because she could see all of wikipedia and sort of pass it down to me.

Yeah, she said out there she'd go down these kinds of Wiki rabbit holes, just clicking on link in article to link in article to link in article. That's how she found out about Thomas, actually, just some stub in the references on a page for a poem. On French Wikipedia. This chick is fuckin dedicated.

she doesn't even speak french!

SHE DOESN'T EVEN SPEAK FRENCH!!!!!!!!!!!!

She's some kind of trivia wizard. Had that French project on Thomas, came in, and I guess was a bit disappointed about the state Thomas was in. Or figured they had less in common than she expected, which, fair!

never meet your heroes etcetera.

i also think she was a little upset by not being able to get into the video essay game. she had a podcast for a while, i think! so i can hear her loud and clear.

She tries to keep up with the times more than the rest of us I think. Right now, she's really digging True Crime. I dunno what Fake Crime would be then, but you do you, dudette!

i think she makes videos about them but with a little drawing instead of her face. i think she left it outside. all i know is she looked a bit like zeke. but probably less...

i can't stand them to be honest

her face

XX